IN THE ABSTRACT

Please amend the Abstract as follows:

A display driver device with double calibration allows the manufacturer of the display driver device to correct the manufacturing process as related to the spread of parameters by storing basic settings, while the. The manufacturer of display modules can store correction factors to tailor the characteristics of a display module containing a particular display driver device and a particular display device.

Fig.1